

Hundreds win enduring 15 mile run

By JOSEPH WALKER
Universe Staff Writer

At first glance, the uninformed observer might have thought he had stepped upon a Spring fashion show on a grass field north of Deseret on Saturday morning instead of the starting line of the first BYU 14-stake Funrun.

The conceivable form of running could be seen — from the satin exercise attire to the left-over mission P-Day. From custom-made running shoes to bare feet.

Runners themselves were no less than the clothes they were wearing. Experienced runners quickly stretched every muscle, cartilage, every tendon. First-timers chatted and strolled to the assembled 2,500 participants.

Age-group, every social class, level of athletic prowess was represented, and all were made to feel welcome.

The early morning sun, unimpeded by a thin veil of cloud, was doing its best to warm the masses, but a cool breeze brought goosebumps to the arms and legs. We were anxious to get our jaunt, if only to receive the warmth such exercise would provide.

Wish was soon to be granted, as Marion D. Hanks of the LDS First Quorum of the Seventy appeared on the scene precisely at 9 a.m. to start the race.

With a loud crack, we were off. We walked past the offices of the Student Terrace, someone shouted, "Go Paul Cummings!" We asked and they pointed out a little distance that seemed to be flying past the leading a solid wall of fitness enthusiasts that extended behind him for several hundred yards. It was the thought of the reward we would have of the first runner that kept us going.

As we were firmly entrenched in the race, we fell into a nice, comfortable pace. At first, it appeared we would be the only walkers in the race, but soon we were joined by a group of runners who, after 200 yards, swallowed their pride and joined us on our stroll along the 4.5 mile course.

Hundreds of participants make their way through Indian Hills Saturday as part of the 14-stake Funrun.

The constant uphill slope began to tire even those of us who were walking. In the middle of the road, two men in wheelchairs found the slope even more challenging. Each foot seemed to be a struggle for them, but still they persisted. A young man offered to give one of the wheelchair riders a push, which was politely refused. "Poor fellows," we thought as we trudged on ahead of them.

Moments later, the course began heading downhill, and the two men on wheelchairs glided past us, glancing sympathetically from side to side. As they zipped past us and out of sight, I thought I overheard one of them saying to the other, "Poor fellows."

By the time we got to the first water stop, we were pretty much on our own.

The bulk of the company was ahead of us, only a few late starters behind. But all around us were signs that we were not alone in enjoying this experience. Crushed earthworms and tennis shoe prints in the sand gave us a certain security, a feeling of belonging even though we were so far behind.

As we maintained a quick, steady pace through the serene streets of Indian Hills, conversation turned inevitably to the pioneers. "What tremendous physical shape they must have been in!" we marveled. "How important it must be to be prepared to face whatever will come — prepared with food storage, with money, and with physical fitness to endure whatever we must endure."

Like many, we had never been too

New unrest flares after Iran killings

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Revolutionary authorities, rejecting U.S. and other criticism of their execution of a former Iranian prime minister, sent six more men to their deaths before firing squads Sunday, Tehran newspapers reported.

New violence flared in the streets of Tehran in the aftermath of Saturday's execution of Amir Abbas Hoveida, who served as prime minister under the now-exiled shah for 13 years.

In the capital's eastern section, women fired from a passing car at a group of militia guards of the Islamic revolutionary government, wounding several of them, news reports said. The women were reported to have escaped.

In northern Tehran, five militiamen were killed and four others injured in an explosion late Saturday. The cause was not officially announced, but news reports speculated the militiamen were trying to defuse a bomb or hand grenade when it exploded.

Sunday's six executions took place before dawn in four cities, the newspapers said. Those executed were two pro-shah army men, three of the shah's policemen and a landlord who was charged with illegally seizing land and raping several women.

State radio reports confirmed that only three of the executions had taken place.

The official execution toll stands at 76 since revolutionary tribunals began their work after the Feb. 12 fall of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's government. They included 15 military and police generals who served the deposed monarch.

Meanwhile, revolutionary officials said 26 prisoners were put on trial in Tehran, reportedly including Gen. Amir Hosein Rabii, former chief of the air force, and Manuchehr Azmun, who served as Hoveida's labor minister.

As the courts continued to dispense their Islamic justice, the government brushed aside international protest over the execution of Hoveida, the highest-ranking former official shot thus far.

The U.S. State Department said it deplored the execution because "internationally accepted standards for open and fair trials" had not been observed. France and the Netherlands were among other nations to criticize the act.

Government spokesman Abbas Amir-Entezam said Sunday that Hoveida was a "socially undesirable person, corrupt to the core, and should have been punished."

At a news conference, Amir-Entezam said the nations who protested the execution were the ones who had most profited from Hoveida's policies.

But he also said the government had nothing to do with the trial, drawing a distinction between it and the revolutionary courts of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Moslem clergyman who led the anti-Shah uprising.

State radio reported that Hoveida, who served as prime minister in 1965-77, was executed on charges ranging from corruption, spying for the United States, to heroin smuggling. Courtroom sources said he denied most of the charges.

Smoking rats in Y research

Sugar football fans got a chance to see some familiar faces Saturday morning and were introduced to some new ones as the BYU football team held its annual Blue-White game, with offense winning 33-24.

Defensive scoring was counted in the normal manner, but the defense also got into the scoring, receiving points for various defensive performances.

Elder Bangert Tuesday's speaker

Elder William Grant Bangert of the LDS First Quorum of the Seventy will be the speaker in Tuesday's 10 a.m. devotional assembly.

The public is invited to attend the final devotional assembly for Winter Semester. It will be broadcast live over KBYU-FM and broadcast over both KBYU-FM and KBYU-TV, Channel 11, Sunday at 9 p.m.

Elder Bangert has been president of two stakes and presided over the Brazilian Mission. Marc Tanner Band: getting act together

by MARCI JUDD
Universe Staff Writer

Marc Tanner, dressed casually in a rust corduroy jacket and faded blue jeans, leaned back with his knee clasped between his hands, to reflect on his music career.

"I feel we're off to a very good start," he said of the new Marc Tanner Band that has been together just two months, "and the only way to go from here is up."

The band played as the back-up to Firefall in an ASBYU concert Friday night in the Marriott Center, and brought the audience to its feet several times with hand-clapping, fast-moving music and show.

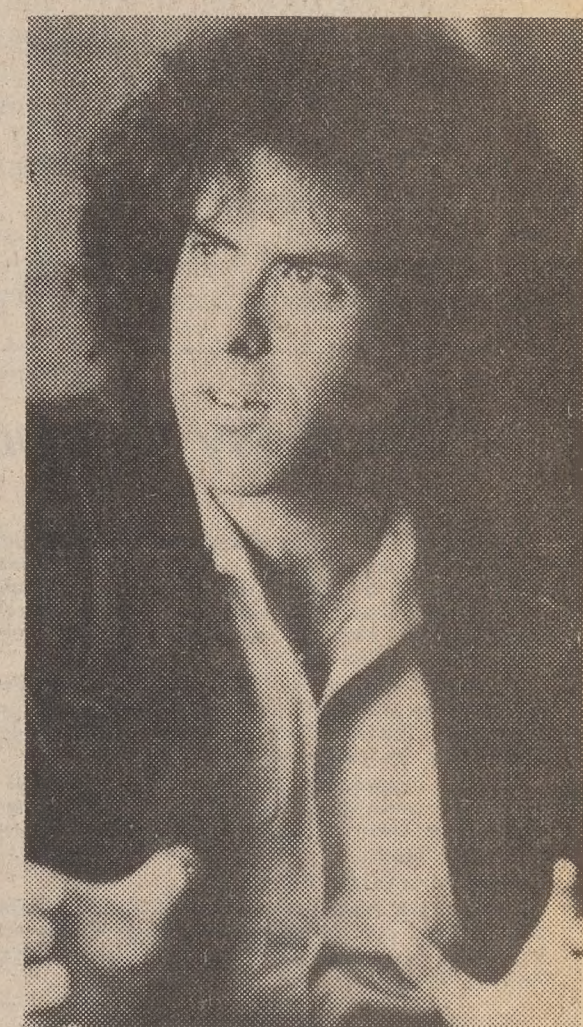

"I think a live show is the best part of my credibility as an artist," said Tanner in a Daily Universe interview Friday before his BYU performance. "I used to go to concerts myself, so I know what the audience wants. It's just against my standards to deprive an audience of what they come to see."

From his first step on stage until the last vibrant strum of his guitar in Friday's performance, Tanner never slowed down his pace. He danced his way around the stage for a full 20 or 30 minutes, and during the last song, "So You Wanna Be a Hollywood Star," he left the stage and danced through the audience.

Tanner told those at the concert, "They told me this was going to be a good audience, and they were right." Then, "You guys are terrific!" "The audience was so wonderful I wanted to be a part of it," said Tanner. "You know, every audience has a personality — some are a force in the music while others just sit and listen." Shortly after the concert, he commented, "I was really pleased with the BYU audience tonight."

With a sincere smile that tells you he loves what he's doing, Tanner described the life of a performing group as "glamorous."

"To be honest, it is and it isn't," he said. "I've never kidded myself into thinking that it would be an easy way to go, but I love what I'm doing."

Tanner said he's been trying to get into the music business for eight or nine years, and in the meantime he's had some pretty varied jobs.

After graduating from college in elementary education, he taught first grade for a year. Still fostering his desire to become a musician, he would use his music in the classroom.

"I used to play rock and roll for the children," said Tanner with a smile. "There were some parents that got upset when their kids came home singing

Bondo Battalion rescues Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Tanzanian forces pounded the southern approaches to Kampala with heavy artillery fire Sunday after apparently being stopped by unexpected resistance from fresh Ugandan troops, according to exile sources and residents of the Ugandan capital.

Amin's harsh eight-year rule seemed in its final hours Saturday when the last of an estimated 2,600 Libyan troops defending him were reported to have fled toward an air base in the north, evidently to fly back to Libya.

But exile sources said Sunday the invasion force of Tanzanian soldiers and anti-Amin Ugandan rebels had run into new opposition — the Bondo Battalion, loyal troops recently brought down from Amin's home area of West Nile province in northwestern Uganda.

NRC fights to retain credibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission faces what may be an even greater challenge than the near-disaster at Three Mile Island — a fight for credibility and public confidence.

Critics and supporters alike say the 5-year old agency is going through the most crucial time in its history, with investigations into the accident at the nuclear plant in Pennsylvania expected to put the NRC on trial.

The rest stations along the route were a popular stop.

Wedded youths threaten family

LOGAN, Utah AP — Teenage marriages and premarital pregnancy are becoming the most serious threats to the stability of the Utah family, says the head of Utah State University's Family and Human Development Department.

Department head Dr. Jay Schvaneveldt says the latest national figures show marriage has a better chance of lasting when males marry at an average age of 23 and females at a little over 21.

"At least, we are getting away from teen-age type marriages nationally," Schvaneveldt said. "But in Utah, the rate of teen-age weddings is higher than ever and probably the main reason Utah's divorce rate is one of the highest in the country."

Because Utah parents place such a high value on being married, kids think, "If it's that good of a thing, why not do it even earlier," Schvaneveldt said.

Schvaneveldt said becoming parents too quickly makes a young couple's marriage too complex.

concerned with physical fitness. We were in good shape in high school, and we could still get from the car to the couch without any significant increases in heart rate or blood pressure.

But the Fun Run, even though we were walking, was teaching us how unprepared we really were physically. We were enjoying the walk, but we were beginning to experience some discomfort that we would endure for the next couple of days.

Finally, one hour and 15 minutes after we had started, we rounded the stadium track and crossed the finish line. Cummings had been the first to cross the line, only 22 minutes and three seconds after Elder Hanks had fired the starting gun. At that rate, he could have run the course three and one half times and still beaten us to the finish line.

But we didn't really care about the time. What we did care about was that we had finished. We had determined to begin our fitness program, and we did it. We felt an enormous sense of satisfaction and pride at our meager beginning.

So did Carol Goodell. The St. Petersburg, Fla. native stepped across the finish line after battling the course for an hour and 19 minutes. But it isn't the biggest battle Miss Goodell has ever fought. She is also battling Cerebral Palsy.

Missing meteorite replaced

By ROY JOHNSON
Universe Staff Writer

Explorer and adventurer DeVere Baker loaned another piece of the Murchison Meteorite to BYU Friday.

Baker first donated a piece of the meteorite, which he claims is evidence that life exists on other worlds throughout the universe, to the LDS Church in 1972. The fragment was then sent to BYU and subsequently "misplaced" in the geology department.

Three pieces of the meteorite were found by Baker in Australia, one was given to NASA, one was given to the LDS Church and one was kept by Baker. The piece placed Friday in the Monte L. Bean Museum is Baker's personal fragment.

After the loss of the Baker's first Murchison fragment, which he called "almost unforgivable," the Monte L. Bean Museum borrowed three pieces of the same meteorite from the Field Museum in Chicago. These pieces have been on display since the beginning of February. It has not been decided where the new fragment will be displayed, said Wilmer W. Tanner, director of the museum.

The meteorite contains amino acids which are the basic building blocks of life. This is evidence, said Baker, that life exists on other planets and that evolution is an on-going process throughout the universe.

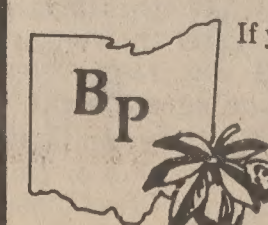

Baker said, "The meteorite is the link between evolution and Joseph Smith's theory of creation. It is the single most important thing ever to come to the earth as far as science and theology goes."

New Student Health Center Hours For Spring And Summer Terms

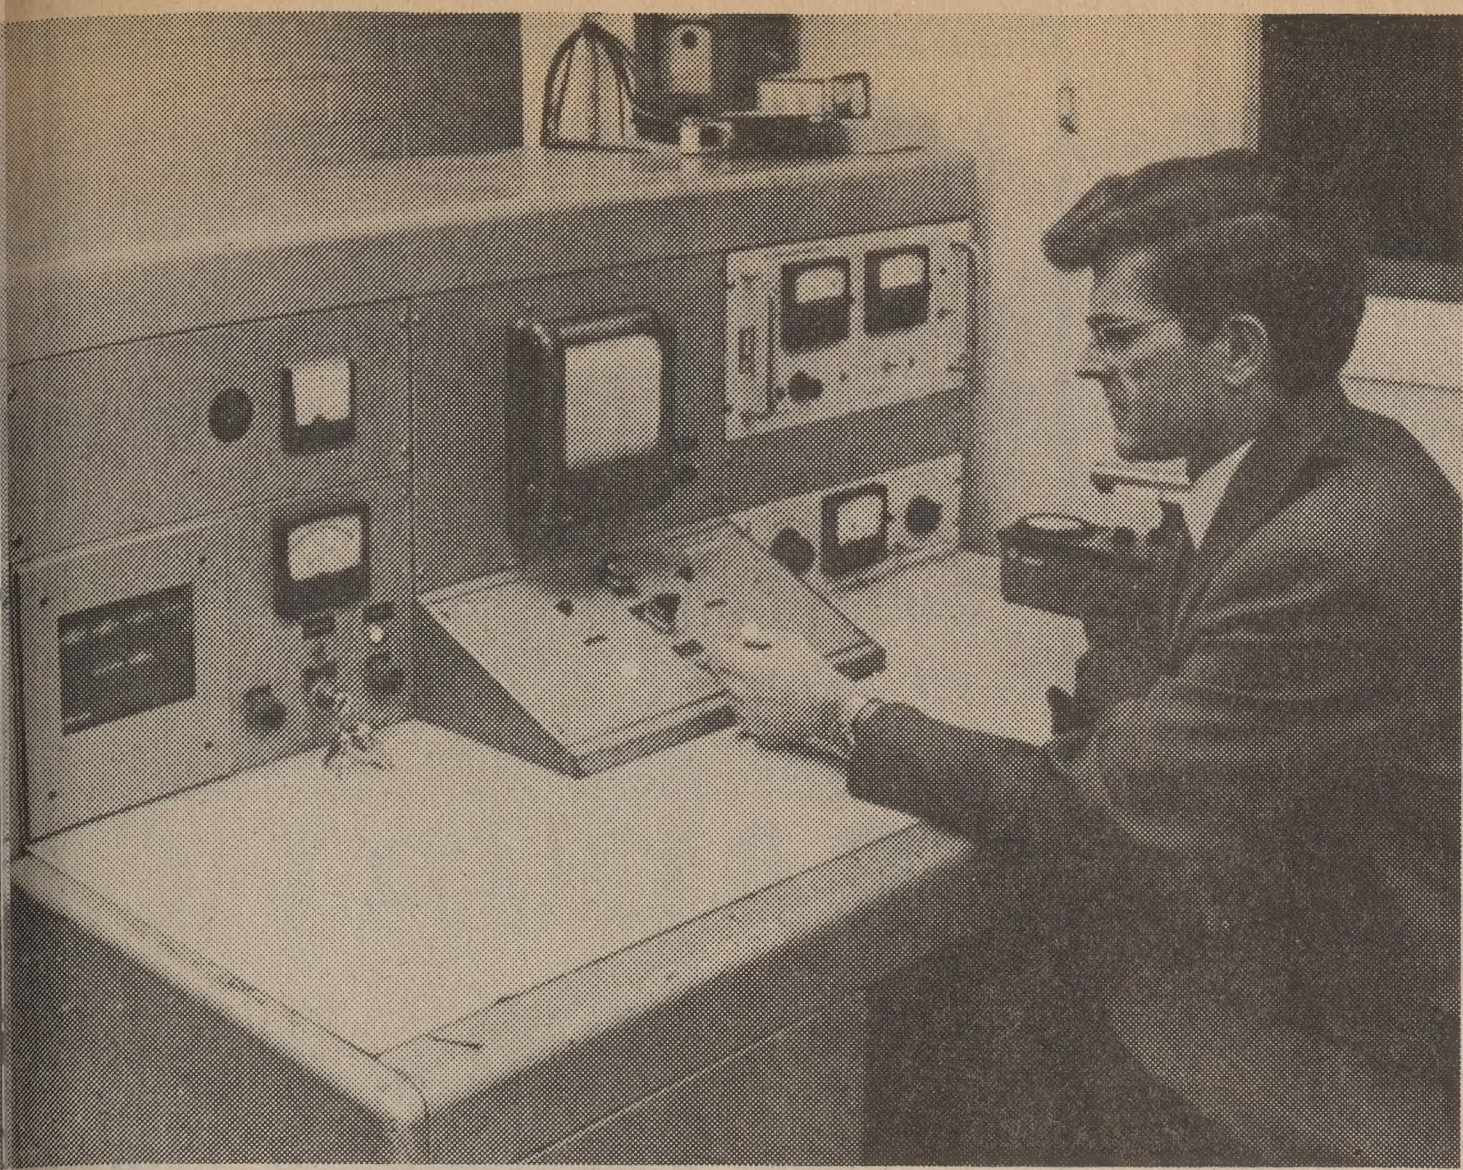

Beginning April 20, 1979, the Student Health Center will close completely at 11:00 p.m. each day and will re-open at 7:00 a.m. the next day.

Emergency medical care during these hours will be provided through Utah Valley Hospital emergency room.

Students seen at the Utah Valley Hospital between 11:00 p.m. and 7:00 a.m. who would be eligible for care at the Student Health Center may have their bill from Utah Valley Hospital modified to what they would have paid if the service had been rendered at the Student Health Center. To do this the student must bring that bill to the Health Center Cashier Office on the next regular working day and the Health Center Cashier will help with this adjustment.

This only applies to out-patient emergency treatment. No service is provided under this agreement except to eligible students.

Those who have the Student Health Plan will pay only what they would have paid at the Health Center. Students with the Student Health Plan, however, must bring their bill to the Health Center the next working day the same as other students. There is no adjustment on hospitalization.

Gary Lee Jensen sits at the control board of BYU's nuclear reactor. Jensen said the reactor is to train students in nuclear physics.

Reactor safe, says professor

By DAVID WEBB
Universe Staff Writer

One of the three smaller nuclear reactors in the world has been involved in an accident resulting in a spillage. Jensen said there has never been a radiation accident at BYU.

BYU is one of the three reactors, but Dr. B. Kent Sandquist, chairman of the department of physics and nuclear engineering laboratory, told the Salt Lake Tribune that they have had a small radioactivity leak at their 100 kilowatt research reactor. Sandquist said student exposure to radiation was well within the federal standards for safe dosage. He said the accident involved the leakage of a sample taken from the reactor.

Gary Lee Jensen, who teaches a reactor physics class at BYU, said the reactor on campus is used to train students in nuclear physics, and for limited research. He said the reactor could be dangerous if misused, but "we have no need to produce dangerous material, and we don't."

Dr. Dwight R. Dixon, a BYU nuclear physics professor, said, "Even if you tried to blow up the BYU reactor you couldn't get it to do much." He said the reactor only produces ten watts of power, and that is only 1/170,000,000 of the power that was produced by the crippled Three Mile Island reactor.

Harrison said the Nuclear Regulatory Commission carefully monitors BYU's use of the reactor and the commission's standards have never been exceeded.

Sandquist said the health hazards caused by the Utah reactors are fewer than those produced by radiation sources in hospitals and doctor's offices. He also said they have never had an accident involving the reactors themselves.

West German parliament member very impressed" with Y students

By WENDY OGATA
Universe Staff Writer

On the third day of his three-week U.S. tour, a member of West Germany's parliament visited BYU.

Dr. Rolf Meinecke, a veteran member of West Germany's Bundestag (Federal Assembly), is comparable to the U.S. House of Representatives, is visiting the states at the invitation of the Fulbright Commission, U.S. government.

Meinecke, chairman of the Committee on Education and Cultural Research, is in the U.S. on the exchange of students and scholars who participate in the Fulbright program. He came on the tour to see how things happen to German students and students who come to the U.S. on the Fulbright Fellowship program. The tour marks his first visit to the states.

Meinecke's visit to the Y, he met with Vice President Robert K. Thomas and the Learning Resource Center, HBL. He also met the staffs of the Continuing Education Center and placement office.

DR. ROLF MEINECKE

Meinecke said he was "very impressed" with the student's studious, yet friendly attitude. Meinecke complimented the combination of art and music in the library, in terms of books, records and tapes. He said the number of people seriously using the available materials also impressed him.

The doctor said he was not sure if he would try to incorporate some of the things he saw during his visit to the Y, into West Germany's education system, saying he would have to think about it.

When asked about the reaction of the German people to the recent showing in their country of the mini-series "Holocaust," Meinecke said those in the 15 to 35 age groups received it with a positive attitude. Those in the 35 to 40 age groups reproached their elders for having swept their own history "under the rug," he said.

A number of people in West Germany are attempting to get an extension on the statute of limitations on murder, including war crimes such as those of the Holocaust type Meinecke said. "The showing of 'Holocaust' gave these people support toward their cause."

The American-made mini-series caused trouble in some families, Meinecke said. "Those in the 45 to 50 age group would ask their fathers, 'Father what did you do during this time?' and many times the fathers could not answer the question," Meinecke said.

West Germany's educational network is considering re-showing the mini-series, he said.

Fieldwork experience aids design students

By MAUREEN RICE
Universe Staff Writer

Interior design help on large or small jobs is available from the Department of Interior Environment. Every semester 15 senior students from the department are placed with local stores, firms and clients where they work one day a week to gain practical experience.

The students don't provide drawings, renderings or floor plans for their clients. The purpose is not to compete with local retail businesses but to help the client select the right furnishings, such as draperies, from the merchants.

Occasionally, students help redo offices on campus or put together displays for departments. Others become involved with small businesses in redecorating their premises. Most clients are BYU faculty, staff or students and services are provided free of charge.

Interior environment student Michelle Thueson, a senior from Blackfoot, Idaho, measures curtain length for a window as part of her senior fieldwork experience. About 15 students participate in the program each semester.

"This gives the student a chance to visualize a realistic relationship with a firm or client," said Dr. Preston Gustafson, overseer of the fieldwork program. "It helps students shape possible career decisions."

The cementing of theoretical principles with practical experience increases the quality performance of the students, he said. "Clients provide a written evaluation, a grade so to speak, of each student's work throughout the semester," Gustafson said.

Seniors have the option of working during the semester or of taking an internship. They are placed with a prominent interior design firm and work every day for 6 weeks — usually without compensation. Approximately 25 percent are then offered jobs with the firms they worked with, he said.

A semester abroad internship for interior environment has been started so students can travel abroad to study. Students thus far have gone to London, where they were placed with firms in the area and were able to learn of local architecture as well.

Dr. David Taylor, who accompanied the students, said they hope to continue that program June through December in Paris.

Panel encourages women to participate in politics

By SALLY VEACH
Universe Staff Writer

An interest in politics and an awareness of our democratic system is important for women, said Norma Matheson, wife of Utah Governor Scott Matheson, in a Thursday panel discussion sponsored by the ASBYU Women's Office.

Other panelists included Amy Valentine, Republican National Committee woman; Anagene Meecham, Provo's first woman City Commissioner; and Loneta Murphy, Women's Rights Chairman for the League of Women Voters of Utah.

"Women have a tremendous responsibility in helping to maintain a democratic society," Mrs. Matheson said. "Women need to become involved in politics and support the system by which representatives are elected because it touches their lives constantly," said Mrs. Murphy.

The League of Women Voters, Mrs. Murphy said, helps women to gain a foothold in politics. These women are involved at the local, state and national level. Women research the pros and cons of a problem, and then submit the material for study, she said.

Mrs. Valentine said an interest in good government should be part of women's values.

"Being involved in politics is a good opportunity to learn practical ways to participate and a means to influence less informed citizens," Mrs. Valentine said.

Mrs. Meecham said her interest in politics began by getting involved in the needs of her neighborhood and the PTA.

"It is important for women to become involved at any level in their community," Mrs. Meecham said.

Japanese educators

'Japanese parents too indulgent'

By MAUREEN RICE
Universe Staff Writer

Japanese parents are too indulgent of their children and do not discipline or scold them, according to Dr. Takeji Kamiko, professor of sociology from the Osaka City University in Japan. "American parents are much wiser in this area."

Kamiko is visiting four U.S. universities during a six-month period to learn of the "recent developments in the family and of the methodology of research." These include University of Southern California, Notre Dame, BYU and the Minnesota Family Studies Center. Minnesota is currently the best center for study on the family in the U.S. as well as cross-culturally.

Upon completion of the tour, Kamiko will return to Osaka to his research team of 11 associates who are presently conducting research of the family. Because of BYU's studies on disciplining and the parent-child relations, Kamiko chose to study the methodology of research being conducted here.

Referring to the Japanese family, he said the American family could adopt the "stem-family household." The aged in Japan have different kinds of stresses but are not as isolated as here. "Seventy-five percent of those over 65 live with one of their married children — it used to be 80 percent but we are moving away from the extended family," Kamiko said.

When asked of the role of women in the home, Kamiko said, "There is women's liberation in Japan ... with 30 percent of the women working outside the home." More women are going to universities but most attend two year colleges. "Women are moving into professions, but much less than compared to America," Kamiko said. The dual role of the woman is increasing but is not as dominant. Stress on the Japanese family has been increased because of this.

A $4,000 prize has been awarded in the Vera Mayhew contest to 30 students for their creative writing and musical abilities.

Here, Vera Mayhew student writing contest, begun in 1944, was originally a short story writing contest, said Bruce B. Clark, contest chairman. The contest has expanded through the years, and now includes six different contests for students.

Some E. Mayhew, husband of Vera Mayhew, a former BYU student, set up the fund, in honor of his wife, which has the contest with the funds. It has been in her honor.

This year the contest included short story, poetry, essay, playwriting, and arts and musical composition.

by James W. Paulsen for his essay on "An Education for Social Needs." Paulsen received $300. Rita Ann Best won $200 and second place for her work "Education: A Process." Third place prize of $125 was awarded to Douglas P. Reid for his work "The Educated Person." Fourth place in the contest was won by Judy Kenison who was awarded $75. Eleven students submitted essays for the contest.

The Playwriting Contest was won by Susan W. Lewis for her play "Watch the Garden Grow." Ms. Lewis was awarded $500 for her work. Second place for "Deathwatch" was awarded to Chris Jay Grayson, who received $200. Joseph Watkins and Tim Slover both received honorable mention. Fourteen students submitted entries in the contest.

Visual arts awards

Twenty-three students submitted entries in the visual arts contest. Judges selected one first place winner and awarded three-way ties for both second and third places. Mick Reasor received $250 for a landscape in carbon pencil. Chad Buck, Jennifer Wixom and Dave Kern each received $100 for their second place entries. Third place honors were shared by Travis Anderson, Lynn Millman and Cliff Dunston. Third place winners received $50 each for their displays.

The Musical Composition Contest resulted in a tie for first place between Murray E. Boren and David Zabriskie. Boren composed "Portraits," an orchestral suite and Zabriskie composed an oratorio, "Israel." The first place winners each won $200. There was a three-way tie for second place, with each of the following winners receiving $100. Joseph Downing was awarded for his work in orchestra variations, "Of the Fathers' Love Begotten." Sue Neimoyer won for her piano sonata and Robert Lee Rowberry was honored for his piano sonata.

Short story winners

Short story winners were selected in the Vera Mayhew contest, from among 48 students who submitted entries. First place was awarded to Joseph C. Peterson for his story "Yellow Dust." Peterson was awarded $250. Second place was awarded to Keith Lawrence for his story "The Cemetery." He received a $100 prize. Third place went to Lisa Downing, who received $125. Fourth place was awarded in a three-way tie with W. Hansen, Dian Saderup and W. Shields each awarded $50. The poetry contest was won by Rita Ann Best. Ninety-six students submitted poems for the contest. Ms. Best selected 10 poems and was awarded $200. Second place was captured by a three-way tie, with each of the following winners receiving $175 for their poems. Dian Saderup took third place for two poems she submitted and was awarded $100. In a three-way tie for fourth place, Sibyl Anderson, Laurel Stowe and Dale Johnson each received $50.

Scovil leads offense to victory

By CARL HAUP
Assistant Sports Editor

Cougar football fans got a chance to see some familiar faces Saturday morning and were introduced to some new ones as the BYU football team held its annual Blue-White game, with the offense winning 33-24.

Offensive scoring was counted in the normal manner but the defense also got into the scoring act, receiving points for various defensive performances.

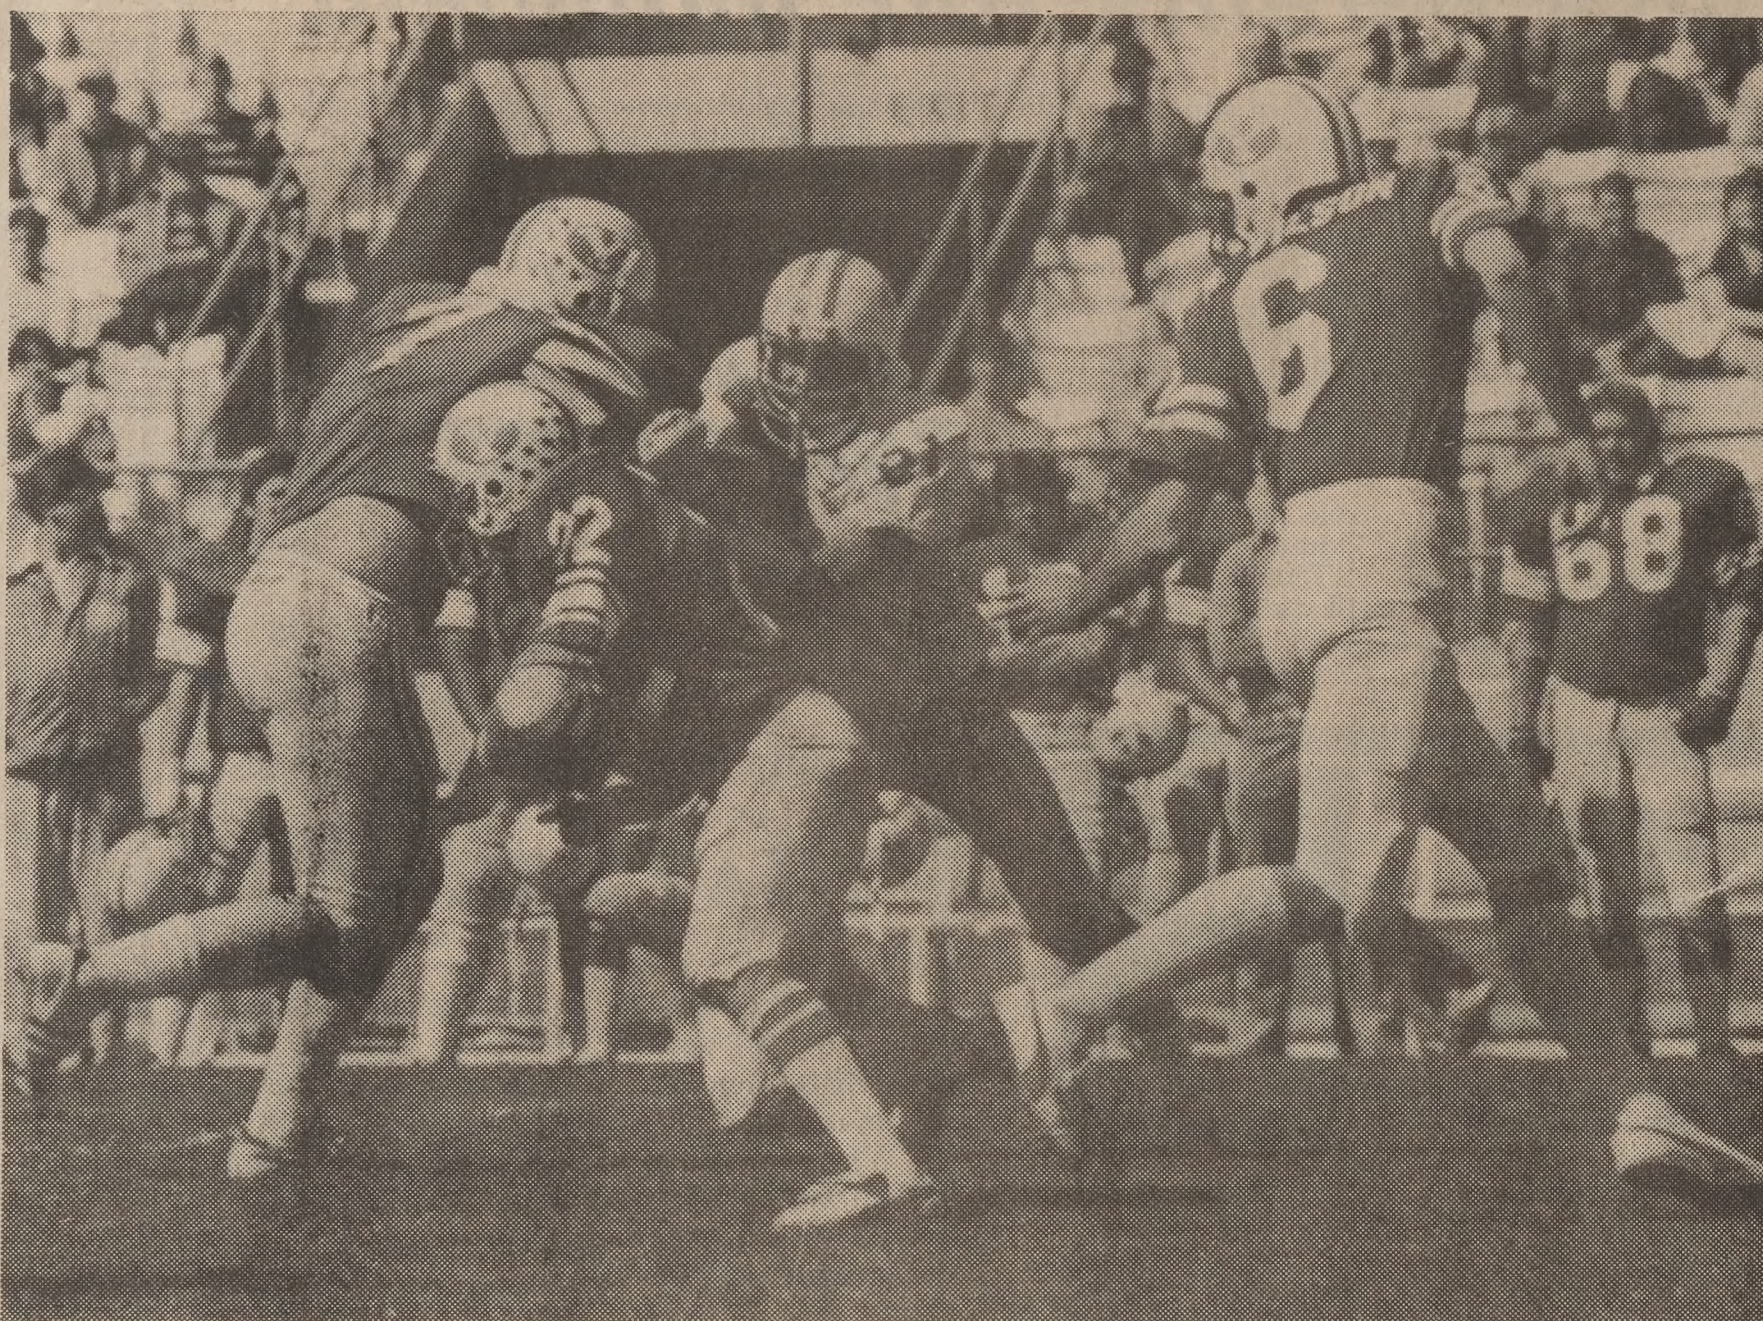

The BYU passing attack racked up 394 yards with 10 different receivers getting into the action. Returning quarterback Marc Wilson paced the Cougars with 243 yards passing on 15-24 attempts and four touchdowns. Royce Bybee, a junior from Alhambra, Calif., connected on eight of 21 passes for 151 yards.

The crowd of about 2,000 cheered when it was announced that Doug Scovil was back in Provo directing the BYU offense. There were noticeable changes in the offense with Scovil back in control of the team. The shifting backfield, used extensively last season under offensive coordinator Wally English, wasn't used once. The offense also concentrated on the passing attack.

There were several players absent from the game. Quarterback Jim McMahon is recovering from knee surgery and defensive end Matt Mendenhall also missed the game because of injuries.

Eric Lane and Homer Jones, a couple of junior college transfers, showed why they were so highly recruited. Lane (6-0, 190) caught a 43 yard touchdown pass from Wilson with 4:36 to play in the third quarter and Jones was deep man on the punt returns.

The defense also has some new faces in the lineup. Pulusila Filiaga (6-2, 240), a talented defensive tackle from Hawaii, teamed up with Glen Titensor (6-4, 236), a transfer from UCLA, to give the Cougars some new muscle on the defensive line. Returning starter Doug Stromberg gave the Cougars an experienced player in the tackle position.

The linebacking corps is also undergoing a transformation. Gone is veteran Rod Wood from the Middle Linebacker position but his position was filled by Gary Kama, who red-shirted last year, just waiting for the chance to suit up. Redshirt Danny Frazier, (6-5, 221) is playing weakside linebacker. Other familiar names returning to the 1979 squad are Kyle Whittingham, shifted from fullback to linebacker; Mike O'Neil, Ed St. Pierre; Glen Redd; and Mike Mees, who was originally a quarterback. Marv Allen, a standout on last season's Junior Varsity, played in the game but will be leaving on an LDS mission in May.

Next fall

The Cougars open their season next fall against Texas A & M in Houston.

BYU then returns home for a first ever game against the Wildcats of Weber State. Hawaii officially joins the Western Athletic Conference on July 1 and will play the Cougars in Provo on September 29. Besides the usual WAC schedule, the Cougars will see action against Utah State on October 13 in Logan and will travel to Southern California for a meeting with Cal State Long Beach.

7 records fall at invitational

It's becoming rather common place but the record books got another revision Saturday, as Cougar women's track team made changes on previous school marks at the Utah State Invitational track and field meet.

BYU's relay teams accounted for three of the new records as times of 47.33 in the 440-yard relay, 1:46.51 in the 880-yard medley relay and 9:29 in the two-mile relay all bettered previous marks.

Themis Zambrzycki broke her own school mark with a 13.83 seconds in the 100-meter hurdles. Zambrzycki ran a record breaking 24.7 in the 100 meters. Maria Luiza Betioli was also a record breaker leaping 6-2 in the high jump. Heather Kuusela set a new record in the discus with a toss of 153-2.

Ruggers wallop Utes, 30-4

BYU proved themselves the state's best for another year, downing Utah 30-4 in Saturday's rugby action at Haws Field.

The Cougars, in command of the game from the start, didn't really break things open until the final 20 minutes of play, with a 20 point scoring blitz. BYU led at halftime, 10-0.

Scott Johnson and Carl Tobler both had a pair of four-pointers for the Cougars. Evan McCall added another. Matt Brown had two two-point conversions and a three-point drop kick. Sam Madsen added another conversion.

Batcats blast Utes in WAC opener

By LISA JOHNSON
Assistant Sports Editor

This weekend's BYU-Utah baseball series was not exactly what one would call par for the field, for the very thing that Cougar Coach Gary Pullins said sparked Friday's 14-6 victory was their near downfall in Saturday's extra-inning 11-10 win.

Despite the obvious offensive finesse the 14-6 score indicates in Friday's competition, Pullins said defense and pitching were the deciding factors. He remarked that he was especially pleased with pitcher Axle Hardy's relief job.

But Saturday's game was a different story. "I think the players let down defensively, and I was dissatisfied with the performances on the mound," Pullins said. "I know those kids are better pitchers than that."

It took the Cougars three pitchers to finally finish off the Utes in the tenth inning Saturday. Tom Morris started the game off and Utah scored, hit, and walked twice in the first inning to give the Utes an early lead.

BYU answered by scoring twice in the second, aided by stolen bases from catcher Len Tshako and center fielder Marc Thomas.

The second inning also saw the Utes score, giving them a lead the Cougars would erase in the third.

In that inning first baseman Ken Clayton doubled to bring Stan Younger, who got on base with a single and advanced himself by stealing, home and the Utes remained scoreless.

Both teams scored single runs in the fourth and fifth innings, and the Cougars pulled ahead by two in the sixth, when right fielder Mark Hildebrand and left fielder Mike Davis jacked homers.

But that lead was short-lived. The Utes scored twice in the sixth to tie the score and retire Morris. Scot Nebeker came in to finish the inning with two strike outs.

The Cougars pulled up again in the seventh when they loaded the bases with singles from the first three batters, Clayton, Thomas and Tshako. Clayton and Tshako were the only two to score, however, giving the Cougar a two run edge at 9-7, and extending the lead to three in the eighth.

The Utes made another comeback in the ninth, however, when they scored three times to even the score, necessitating a game extension and the replacement of Nebeker with Rob Blyth, who finally pocketed the win.

Cougar shortstop Cliff Pastornicky hurls toward first as second baseman Mark Adamiak backs him in a successful double play effort against the Utes on Saturday.

In the tenth, shortstop Cliff Pastornicky batted in Thomas, who had an outstanding day offensively, for the final score. Thomas got four hits and walked once in his six trips to the plate, tied BYU's stolen base record with four in one game and tied teammate Younger's stolen base record at 26.

The outstanding name in Friday's game, however, was Axle Hardy. The Cougars jumped to an early five run lead, but when the Utes scored five times in the sixth, Hardy came in to replace Cougar hurler Bert Bradley. While Cougar bats were swinging for an additional nine runs, Hardy controlled the game and the Cougars came out with a 14-6 victory.

BYU baseball continues today when the Cougars host San Diego State for a three-day stint, each game starting at 2 p.m. These will be non-conference games, since SDSU is in the WAC Southern Division.

Steiner breaks record

By CHUCK GATES
Universe Sports Writer

Records seem as though they will be with us for ever — but then, has anyone tried asking Babe Ruth about a guy by the name of Aaron?

Records are made to be broken and an oldie went to the way of the record book Thursday, as BYU's Tito Steiner bettered C.K. Yang's 16-year NCAA decathlon mark, winning the prestigious Texas Relays in Austin, Texas.

Steiner, a junior, scored 8,124 points, surpassing Yang's previous record total of 8,089 set back in 1963. Steiner's record, also set in a pre-Olympic year, had been the longest remaining NCAA mark on the decathlon record books.

According to Cougar Assistant Coach Elbert Pratt, Steiner accompanied the BYU decathletes to the Relays, and Steiner's times were automatically timed — compared to Yang's hand clocking in 1963. Pratt said the difference between automatic and hand-held timing could have amounted for a difference of as much as 100 points more had Steiner's times, like Yang's, been hand-clocked rather than electronically.

Steiner, who competed for UCLA when he set the record, competed for his native Taiwan in the 1964 Asian Games in Tokyo. Steiner too is a foreign student who hopes to represent his homeland of Argentina at the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

Commenting on his record-breaking achievement, Steiner feels it to be the first step for the Pan American Games this summer and an eventual victory at the 1980 Olympics.

"I feel good," Steiner said of his victory over many of the top decathletes, collegiate and non-collegiate, from around the nation.

Non-collegiate Bob Coffman, who eventually placed second in the competition with 8,060 points, was one of those top decathletes. It was Coffman and Steiner who duelled each other throughout both days of the competition, with the final event, the 1,500-meter run, passing final judgement.

During the second day of competition, Steiner and Coffman, the former University of Southern California star, played a lone point and the pair battled evenly through the second day's activities coming down to the 1,500-meter.

Steiner needed to beat Coffman by more than two seconds in their heat. Coffman stuck with Steiner until the final lap and a half of their race.

When Steiner in Coach Pratt's words, "put him away," Steiner's time for the race was 4:26.

Steiner, while pleased with his record performance, admitted that he couldn't feel the same way as an American would had an American athlete broken the record. "It's not that important to me," Steiner said, referring to his Argentine nationality. Steiner quickly added, however, that he felt it was "great for the university."

Coach Pratt called it a "super job," especially when considering that Steiner "didn't try and peak for the meet." "This is not all we'll see from him this season," Pratt continued.

Cougar Head Coach Clarence Robison said he was happy to see Steiner win. "Tito is one of these young men that rises to an occasion. He's an intense competitor and he'll be tough to beat in the NCAA's."

Interestingly enough, Steiner in winning the decathlon won only one of the 10 events, out-throwing everyone in the shot put with a toss of 52.5 feet. In his remaining field events, Steiner leaped 6-7.5 in the high jump and vaulted what his coaches called a "respectable" 14-10 feet in the pole vault. The need of a strong throw to remain in the competition produced a lifetime best for Steiner in the javelin as he threw 214.5 feet. Usually one of his best events, Steiner's throw in the discus was termed a "disappointment" by Pratt. Although he had been throwing 160-170 feet consistently in practice, Steiner managed only a throw of 146 feet.

Besides the 1,500-meter, Steiner's track efforts included a clocking of 49.3 in the quarter mile, a run of 11.26 in the 100-meters, a time of 14.92 in the 100-meter hurdles and a long jump of 23-4 feet.

Confident that he will do well in the upcoming Western Athletic Conference meet, Steiner is looking ahead to the NCAA outdoor finals. From there, he will direct his attention to the Pan American games in June.

Steiner was not the only BYU competitor to score well in the competition as freshman Esa Jokinen, former Finnish Junior Champion, placed fifth in the collegiate ranks and ninth overall with 7,480 points. Commenting on Jokinen, Pratt predicted that people will be "seeing a lot more of him."

Senior Dennis Miller scored a seventh place finish in the college competition and 11th overall with 7,313 points. Mike Gardner, National Junior College Champion, placed ninth in the college ranks and 13th overall.

In separate Texas Relay competition held Saturday, Cougar hurdler Rafael Echavarria placed fourth in the intermediate hurdles with a time of 51.9 seconds.

Clampett wins medalist honors

BYU's Bobby Clampett entered Saturday's final round of play four strokes behind tournament leader Tom Norris and fired a one-under-par 71 to capture medalist honors in the Fresno Classic Golf Tournament.

The 18-year-old sophomore tied a tournament record with scores of 70-69-71 for a three round total of 210. Three strokes behind him were four players tied for second. They consisted of Tim Norris, Don Levin, San Jose State; Joe Rasset, Oral Roberts; and Jim Short, UCLA.

Despite the brilliant performance by Clampett, the tournament let a six stroke lead going into the final round slip through their fingers and had to settle for second place, 10 strokes behind tournament champion, UCLA.

The Cougars, who have won the tournament five times, finished two strokes ahead of host Fresno State, tied for second going into the final round, finished the two day tournament with 1,094 points. They were followed by Oral Roberts, 1,099; San Jose State, 1,108; Long Beach State, 1,113; USC, 1,114; San Jose State, 1,117; Oregon, 1,118; and UCLA, 1,127.

Clampett will now miss the Cougars next tournament, to be played this week in Santa Cruz, because of an invitation he received to play in the Masters in Augusta, Ga. Clampett earned entrance into the Georgia's most prestigious tournament by way of being a member of the Walker Cup team.

The California native will be the youngest player to participate in the Masters.

Women's tennis aces tournament

BYU's women's netters came back from their 9-0 USC upset in style this weekend, as they breezed the UC Berkeley Invitational Tournament by winning all three matches in the single elimination tourney.

Play began on Thursday when the Cougars aces the University of Oregon 9-0. Competition was canceled on Friday due to inclement weather, but resumed again on Saturday, with the Cougars playing twice to make up for lost time.

BYU first played the University of Arizona, whom they had beaten 9-0 on Cougar courts just last week. The outcome this time was 8-1, with Cougar Lani Wilcox suffering the only loss.

The Cougars faced Berkeley in the finals and downed them with another 8-1 score. The only loss was a doubles default that became necessary in order for the Cougars to catch their plane.

Kings winners of Midwest title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Kings, who won the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division title on the last day of the regular season, will have a weeks rest.

The Kings, who tied for last place in their division with a 31-51 record a year ago, beat the Indiana Pacers 107-101 Sunday to finish 48-34, one game ahead of the Denver Nuggets, who lost to the Philadelphia 76ers 112-111.

The Kings' division title, their first since 1952 when the franchise was in Rochester, N.Y., gave them a bye through the first round of the playoffs, which open Tuesday night.

Los Angeles will be at Denver and Portland at Phoenix to begin the best-of-3 series in the Western Conference. The Eastern Conference first-rounders start Wednesday night, with New Jersey at Philadelphia and Atlanta at Houston.

Asked about the upcoming playoffs, Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said, "All we thought about was winning the division. We haven't even thought about the playoffs. In fact, I don't even know who we'll play."

Firefall, Tanner

Concert quenches hard rock thirst

Firefall performs in concert in the Marriott Center. The concert featured hard rock music that left the BYU audience calling for more after two encores.

By RANDALL EDWARDS
Universe Staff Writer

A BYU audience thirsty for hard rock had its fill Friday night when Firefall and the Marc Tanner band treated them to a jubilant concert the enthusiasm of which is seldom seen at the Marriott Center.

The flash began when the Marc Tanner Band, a relatively unknown rock act, started their set with a fast song, the decibel level hitting like a frontal assault.

Tanner, who looks like a cross between Tiny Tim and Alice Cooper, jumped, shimmied, knelt and wailed, and at one point jumped out into the audience dancing. Aside from being immensely talented, the band, which featured two lead guitarists, is showy, anticipating and playing to their audience and generating a pumping rock style that several times brought the audience to its feet, dancing and shouting.

The best song of the set was "So You Want To Be A Hollywood Star," which featured, aside from Tanner's dancing, solos by his guitarists, sax player and bassist. Unfortunately, the flash of the song was offset by a roadie who constantly wandered around backstage, tuning guitars, messing with equipment and generally distracting both the band and the audience.

After Tanner's antics, the mood of Firefall's set started out subdued, the band appearing in suits and playing mellow songs like "Cinderella" and "Sweet and Sour," but rapidly moving onto rockier ground with "Bad Side Of Town" and "Elena."

Firefall is not a showy group. In fact, at times it seemed that band members almost ignored each other, especially bassist Mark Andes, whose wanderings about the stage stole the spotlight from lead guitar solos and singers alike.

The band did, though, win over its audience by the sheer weight of its excellent musicianship. The band emits a tight sound that parallels its best studio work, especially on the blues-jazz fusions "Lips" and "Livin' Is Easy." Especially good was David Hughes, whose woodwind and keyboard solos were excellent, and Michael Clarke's solid drumming.

Crowd enthusiasm for Firefall was slow in coming, but when the band broke into hard rock and roll, pandemonium broke loose.

"There's a lot of live energy when we get on the stage," says Marc Tanner. Tanner's set was one of the highlights of Friday's Marriott Center concert.

Band's career 'gels'

those kinds of songs, but the children loved it."

Since his first album, "No Escape," was released, Tanner has organized another Marc Tanner band, and says the members in this new group "really got me off." He went on, "Six of us are Leos, noted for the tendency to be dramatic — so there's a lot of live energy when we get on the stage."

Tanner refers to himself and several of his band members as products of the "Beatles" era, and says that has influenced their style in some ways.

"It's great if you're talented," he said, "but you have to have character. The Beatles had their own character."

Tanner described the character of the music he writes and plays as "moody, song-oriented and something that gives people a good feeling."

"I started out trying to be versatile, playing everything from country to jazz," he said. "But we've narrowed it down some, and everything is really starting to gel."

The Marc Tanner "No Escape" album was released in January, and he said its success has gone beyond any prior expectations.

"The hardest thing was waiting after the album was finished, to release it," remembered Tanner, who authored or co-authored all of the songs on the album. "I was ready to go on tour right then."

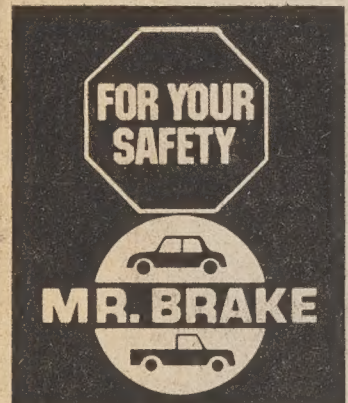

The Tanner band is on a tour now that will last at least two more months. Besides playing as Firefall's back-up band, they'll play as the major group in several cities.

"There's no reason why we can't have a lot of fans," said Tanner. "I have incredible intentions of having an audience everywhere we play. I think there's a space for us in the music market as a major act, and right now we're just carving out a space for ourselves."

For now the Marc Tanner Band is a "family on the road," and Marc says he just wants to keep everyone happy. He concluded, "It's the most wonderful bunch of people you could want to be with."

Foreign students featured in annual Festival of Skits

Foreign students representing more than 15 countries will present the semi-annual Festival of Skits Tuesday at 4 p.m. in room 215 McKay Building.

The skits, which will all be presented in English, include "Fly Soup," "A Happy Audience," "Never On Wednesday," "Make Your Own Bed" and others.

The cast of foreign students, from Germany, Mexico, Uruguay, Italy, Korea, Nicaragua, Japan, Peru, Colombia, Singapore and El Salvador, are students in English as a Second Language. The youngest cast member is a 13-year-old refugee from Vietnam, while the oldest is a 75-year-old Provo Temple custodial worker from Chile.

Dr. Harold Madsen, director of the Festival of Skits, said the skits are to help foreign st dents integrate to American culture through the use of drama.

"Not only is the skit a way by which the foreign student can learn English," he said, "but it is a valid American form which teaches culture and in cases, American values."

The Festival of Skits is open to the public free of charge.

Y professor joins state history board

Thomas G. Alexander, associate director of BYU's Charles Redd Center for Western Studies, has been named to the Utah Board of State History.

Governor Scott Matheson's appointment of Dr. Alexander, a BYU history professor, was ratified in the last session of the Utah State Senate.

The 12-member body Alexander joins functions as a board of directors for the Division of State History, and advises and sets policy for the director of that department.

Alexander previously served as a member of the Advisory Board of Editors of the Utah Historical Quarterly and has written a number of articles on Utah history. He is co-editor of the first college textbook dealing with state history, entitled "Utah's History."

The professor joins one other BYU faculty member, History Department Chairman Ted J. Warner, on the board.

Guatemalans to tell about their country

International students at BYU will present a special informational program on Guatemala Tuesday in 215 MCKB.

The public is invited to attend the 8 p.m. meeting, according to Edel Castillo, student committee chairman from Guatemala.

Using the theme "The Country of Eternal Spring," students will present all aspects of life in the Central American country. "The program will especially help cultural refinement teachers in the Relief Society program of the LDS Church, but anyone is invited to attend," Miss Castillo said.

Five Guatemalan students will present songs and dances from their country and answer questions from the audience. They are Mario and Julio Salazar, Ivette Galvez, Ruth Guirola, and Edel Castillo. Mario is president of the BYU International Students.

Dances, legends, monetary system, architecture and foods will also be covered. Some Guatemalans living in the Provo area will also help present the program.

The committee is working under the International Students Office and the BYU Multi-Cultural Program directed by John Maestas. The committee will present a similar program each month on a different country.

● Smoking rats tested

rat they will show up in a matter of months."

Heninger said the first step in their research was to perform a minor operation on the rats, re-routing a tube so that all sperm cells produced are diverted into the animals' bladder. The cells then pass out of the body in the urine.

Next, they collect urine and blood samples. They analyze the samples to establish a baseline sperm count and find hormone levels for each rat before they are subjected to the smoke.

Then they expose the animals to cigarette smoke. The rats smoke two cigarettes a day, five days a week. The scientists now have about 45 rats who have been smoking for 13 weeks.

The smoking is accomplished by means of a special smoking machine built especially for the research by the BYU Instrument Shop. The rats are placed in a wire tube that restricts their movement much like a straight jacket. Their noses are placed next to a hole in a cylinder on the machine and they have no alternative but to breathe the air inside.

Two cigarettes are placed in receptors on the cylinder and lit. The system is pressurized, forcing smoke through the cigarettes and into the cylinder.

The machine controls the exact amount of smoke the rats are exposed to. They are forced to breathe air containing ten percent smoke for 25 seconds. The smoke is then evacuated and they are allowed to breathe pure air for 35 seconds. The rats are forced to breathe about the same amount of smoke a normal human smoker gets.

The cigarettes in the experiments used are produced especially for research by the University of Kentucky. They are carefully controlled so they contain a standard amount of nicotine.

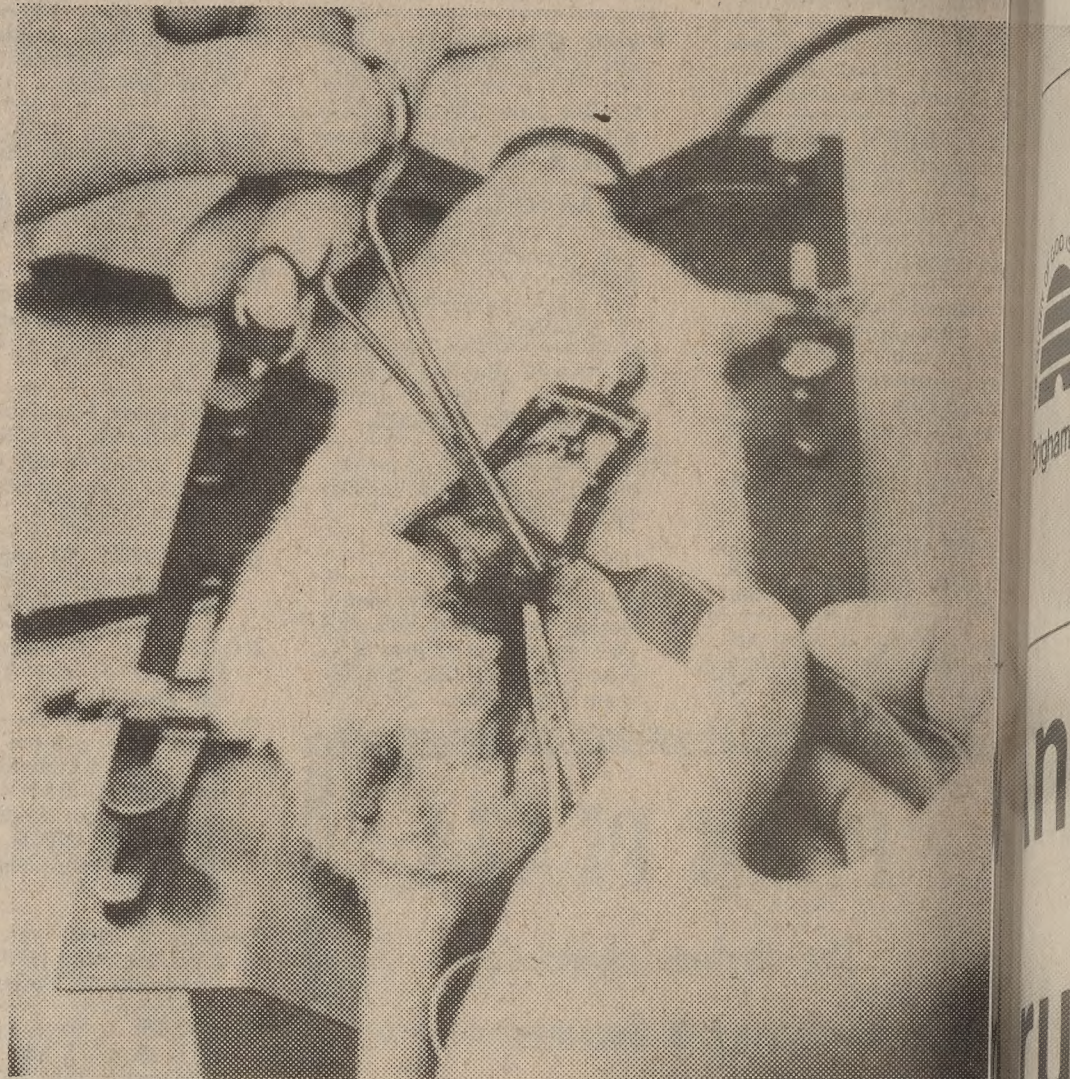

Urine and blood samples from each rat are analyzed regularly while the rats are on the smoke. Any deviation from the baseline count should be the direct result of the smoke.

A group of control rats are subjected to the exact same handling procedure, but the cigarettes remain unlit while they are on the smoking machine. Heninger said the control group will allow them to be sure any deviation is caused by the smoke and not by the experimental procedure.

Heninger said the next steps in their research will be determined by the effect the smoke has on the rats. If the high nicotine cigarettes they are now testing produce a significant effect they will test low nicotine cigarettes and compare the results. In this way they hope to be able to identify just what it is in the cigarettes that causes any reaction.

"We really don't know quite what to expect from the research," Heninger said. "It does appear that there is already some reduction in sperm count, but this is only an eyeball measurement of preliminary data. We certainly don't expect the sperm count to drop to zero, but it appears that smoking may aggravate people bordering on infertility and drop them below what is considered normal."

Urry said they will attempt to validate any conclusions arrived at through their research by comparing them with the actual incidence of infertility in human smokers. He said Utah Valley is an ideal area for this type of comparison because it has a population of smokers and non-smokers and cigarettes are one of the few major differences between their life-styles.

Minor surgery is performed on rats in preparation for tests they will undergo as part of a study on the effects of smoking on reproduction.

BYU is sponsoring the research. Heninger said he hopes other organizations will become interested in the project as they get definitive results back from their experiments. He said they will expand the research to include similar tests on the effect of marijuana if they can find sufficient operating funds.

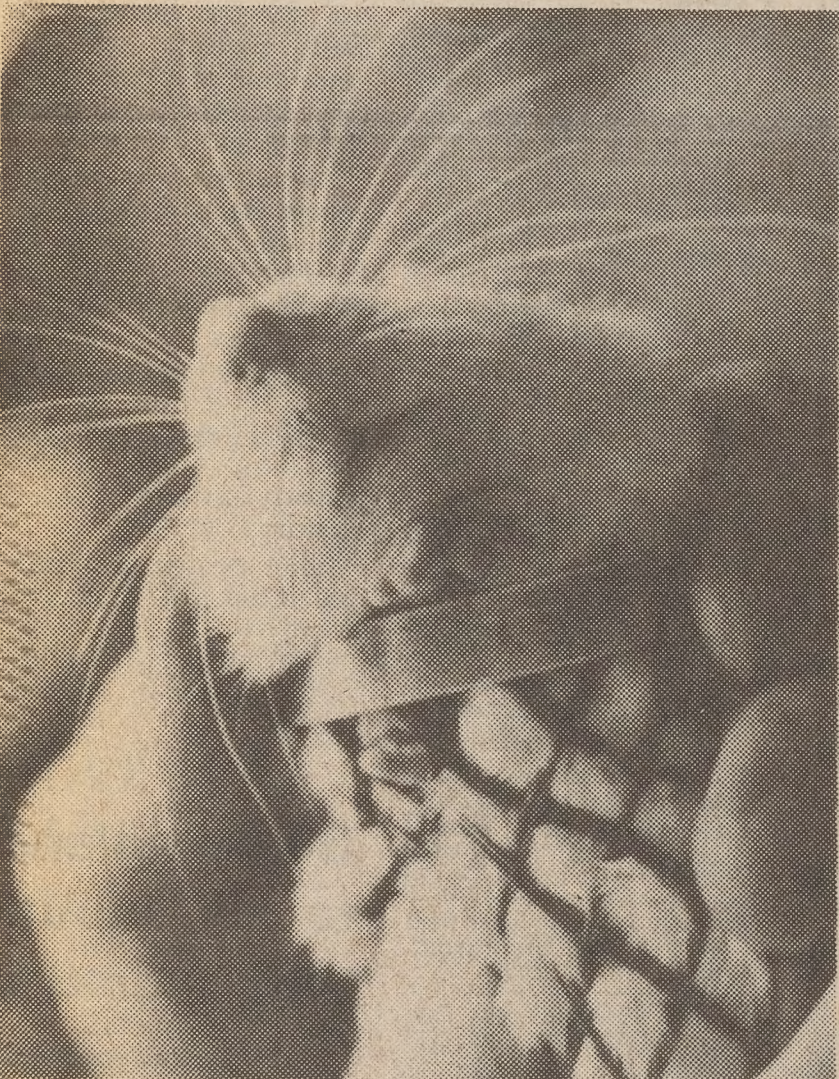

"We know virtually nothing about the biological effect of marijuana," Heninger said. "We expect marijuana would give us much more dramatic results."

But Heninger said marijuana studies are difficult because there are no standardized cigarettes available. He said the government will provide marijuana for research, but it is not usually standardized sufficient for scientific studies.
